No New Registry For Elections Now Pending

Phoenix, September 9—Only those persons who registered prior to the closing of the registration for the election of constitutional delegates on September 12, 1910, are eligible to vote at the primary election October 24, and the general election December 12, according to an opinion given out by John H. Wright, attorney general.

And he says there can be no registration for the coming elections. He holds that under the enabling act, qualified voters for the fall elections will be those whose names appear upon the great register of each county for the year, 1908, and those additional persons who had registered thereafter and up to twenty-one days prior to the election of delegates to the constitutional convention.

Verde Oil Fields Attracting Attention

Jerome, Ariz., September 9—The Verde oil fields are still attracting considerable attention.

Wm. Stephens and Jerry Sullivan, both of Camp Verde, will begin drilling operations in and around Camp Verde as soon as machinery, now being purchased by them in California, is delivered on the ground. The ground has all been taken up by San Francisco, Yuma and Pittsburg parties. The San Francisco company will begin operations within the next two weeks. The well drilling outfit is already on the ground.

The above will be good news to the Yuma people who are interested with Harry McPhaul and Cap. Smith, in the locations made for Yuma people, on what is supposed to be the choicest bit of the oil field.

Wreck Kills Three; Yumaites on Train

(From Monday's Examiner)

John Gadolfo, Sr., came in from Los Angeles on No. 2 this morning. Deputy Sheriff C. A. Livingston and wife came in on the same train.

Their train was twelve hours late due to a collision of the train with a Los Angeles inter-urban car at El Monte, 12 miles out of Los Angeles, in which three persons were killed.

The Yuma train was on time and it is claimed that the flagman at the crossing did his duty, and the assumption is that the motorman on the car was asleep at his post, as no attempt was made to stop the car and the passenger train smashed into it crushing the life out of one woman.

Her son jumped, but fell under the engine of the passenger train which toppled over. He was instantly killed.

One other, a Japanese merchant was killed and a score of others in the street car were injured.

Refused Service

Y. Narayan, the scholarly Hindoo, here from India, studying irrigation and dry farming, and who left Yuma for Phoenix last week, had a bad experience in Phoenix, and he left that city for Tucson, somewhat wrathful.

He was refused service in a Japanese restaurant in Phoenix.

Bad Check Man Arrested in Yuma Breaks County Jail

Speaking of the man Ayars, recently arrested in Yuma, and taken back to Imperial county, the El Centro Standard says:

There was a jail delivery from the county jail between 8 and 9 o'clock last night. One was a Mexican and the other was a bad check man by the name of Ayars, from Brawley.

They tunneled through the brick wall into the garage and made good their escape.

The entire sheriff's force has been chasing them to-day, but they are believed to have got across the line into Mexico and made good their escape.

Bard Farmers Have Their Troubles

(From Monday's Examiner)

The Bard farmers like all others, have troubles of their own, and here is one of them that needs a conference of cool heads and a speedy adjustment.

An edict has recently gone forth from the office of Miss Anna C. Egan, the efficient superintendent of the Fort Yuma Indian school that horses shall not be tied in the highways on the reservation, but taken to Horan's corral and put up there.

Such a notice has been posted at the Fort Yuma store and the Indian police have consequently taken up several horses hitched by Bard farmers, and these horses have been taken to Horan's corral, much to the worry of the owners who were in Yuma buying supplies.

One farmer went back to where he had tied his horses, and discovering that they were gone, walked eight miles back to his ranch, but also failed to find his horses there. After several day's search he discovered his horses at the corral with a feed bill attached, which, added to his several days of worry, he thinks is quite an expensive experience.

The Bard farmers claim a legal right to tie their teams in the highway on the Fort Yuma side of the river while they walk across the bridge to Yuma to buy supplies, and they also claim that one reason some of them do not care to put up at the corral is that they have to cross the railroad track with fractious mules and horses.

Looking to an adjustment of the matter in the quickest and best possible way, a meeting of San Pascual Growers' Association will shortly be called to appoint a committee to wait on the superintendent at Fort Yuma, as it is felt that Miss Egan will readily revise her instruction to the Indian police when the wishes of the Bard farmers are made known to her.

Among other things she will be asked to inform the farmers of any orders affecting them by publication in the Bard paper, which will insure wide publicity and avoid misunderstandings hereafter.

A satisfactory adjustment of the matter is expected.

Funeral Yesterday

(From Monday's Daily Examiner)

The funeral of Capt. B. A. Frazer was held yesterday afternoon at 4:00 o'clock from the Johnson Undertaking parlors under the direction of the Masonic order.

Rev. Matthews, of the Yuma Baptist church, delivered the oration after which the funeral cortege proceeded to the Masonic cemetery where the impressive Masonic ceremonies were rendered by Past Master Chas. M. Smith, assisted by the Masons of the Yuma lodge.

Capt. Frazer, who was past 75 years of age, had no very near relatives living, the only relatives present being his niece, Miss Carmelite Smith, former time a resident of Yuma, and her mother, of Oklahoma, who arrived in Yuma yesterday morning to attend the funeral and who will remain with her daughter all winter at the Idlewild apartments.

They have the sympathy of many friends in their sad loss of one who has been like a father to them.

Democrats Will Also Hold Rally

Phoenix is to be the scene of a statewide Democratic rally some time in September, rivaling if possible, in numbers and enthusiasm that announced yesterday for September 20, when the Republicans will assemble in the capital city, welcome home Delegate Cameron and talk over plans for the coming campaign.

Chairman Dillon, of the Democratic state central committee has announced that he would issue the call for the meeting of his committee within a few days, and that he would name Phoenix as the meeting place. It is expected that he will send out simultaneously an invitation to Democrats generally throughout the state.

Well, This Wouldn't Happen in Yuma

Phoenix, Sept. 10—Pretty tough, isn't it, when a dainty, blushing bride puckers her lips, says "Kiss me," and the probate judge runs away.

Pretty tough, eh? And to think that this happened in Phoenix. That isn't half the story.

They stepped into Judge Phillips' office this morning, and romance was vibrant in the air, as they signed the marriage license register. The judge was there, so was Jeff Adams.

And would the judge perform the ceremony? Would he? You can bet the judge would. And he did. Then the words were spoken.

"Judge," this from her, "haven't I got something coming?"

There was a judicial sidestep and the air was still tinged with romance.

"A kiss, judge. Doesn't the bride get a kiss?"

Another judicial sidestep—bride is standing with lips puckered—then several more quick sidesteps and from down the corridor there floated back: "You kiss her, Jeff."

But Jeff didn't. He sidestepped after the judge. Things will be changed after we get the recall.

He was Theodore E. Hartwig, of Phoenix, she was Lillian D. Seaver, of Rhode Island.

Have Commenced Perilous Trip

Green River, Wyo., Sept. 10—Kolb brothers, two daring young photographers, are here and are on the eve of a departure down Green River into the Colorado and through Grand Canyon by boat. Since Major Powell, first made this trip years ago, in boats built by the government especially for this trip, no white men have attempted the passage.

The brothers expect to make moving pictures wherever practicable as well as ordinary photographs, and if they get through successfully over the 1,400 mile trip, they will arrive in Needles about the first of the year.

Arizona Game Laws

For the benefit of those who have asked this paper lately to publish the game laws of Arizona, the following is published.

The seasons are as follows:

Male deer and turkey, September 15 to December 1.

Quail, bob white, partridge, grouse, pheasant, snipe and rail, October 15 to February 1.

Trout June 1 to September 1.

Bass and crapple, September 1 to December 1.

When hunting or fishing remember the following:

Don't kill any more than three male deer in any one season.

Fish only with hook and line.

Sell no protected game or fish, even in open season.

If a non-resident take out a license, $10 a year.

Camel, elk, mountain goat or sheep, female deer or fawn, must not be killed at any time.

The Yuma Ice Company's Extra Dry Ginger Ale is on sale wherever drinks are sold. Try it.

Sorghum to Swat The Johnson Grass

Prescott, September 10—F. H. McBrook, a farmer on Willow Creek, four miles north of Prescott, seems to be in a fair way of solving the Johnson-grass problem for Arizona farmers.

Early in 1909, Mr. Brock plowed up an acreage on his farm which had been taken possession of by the Johnson grass. In this acreage the farmer sowed sorghum. He paid little attention to the field until the time for harvest, when he found that the sorghum had forced out two thirds of the offending weed.

During the whole of last year Mr. Brock paid no attention to the field, but this year he resowed to sorghum with the result that the latter, which bloomed at the same time, seems to have colonized with the grass. This has had the astounding effect of producing in large patches, sorghum stalks of average size and hardness, topped with the plume characteristic of the Johnson grass.

U. S. Commissioner J. M. W. Moore, who brought the samples of the two stalks into the Chamber of Commerce office yesterday, believes the sorghum will eventually exterminate its rival. He contends that the Johnson grass and the sorghum evidently belong to the same species and that the sorghum being the more hardy, forces its nature into the stalk of the grass at the time of pollenization.

Mr. Brock has cut the two crops together and finds that his cows and horses eat both with equal relish.

MANUSCRIPT COVERS—The Examiner has just received a full new line of manuscript covers or backs for legal documents of all kinds. They come in green and blue and will be sold printed or unprinted. Cheap while they last.
